School choice is the process of families choosing the K-12 educational options that best fit their children.

broad

none

limited

free

limited

broad

broad

COST

free

free Charter schools are

public schools that freedom to innovate

student achievement.

Public charter schools

are not available or allowed in Vermont.

accurate as of 2022;

action may allow for schools in the state.

the creation of charter

This information is future legislative are allowed the

while being held accountable for

Public magnet

free

free to some

varies

Traditional public schools are available for families throughout the state. States that allow families access to their choice of traditional public schools offer what's called "open enrollment."

Vermont high school students may be able to choose any traditional public school, based on the state's flexible open enrollment laws. Transfers are readily available for younger grades as well.

schools are permitted in all 50 states and focus on specific themes, such as math, science, technology, or the performing

Currently, Vermont has at least two magnet schools.

Online public schools are permanent, fully-online, and free educational options that teach students through digital classes.

While Vermont does not offer a free, full-time online school for all grades statewide, students can take courses through the Vermont Virtual Learning Cooperative. For the 2022-2023 school year, K-8 public school students can access full-time online learning through the cooperative for free. may be available In other cases, fees from other sources. may apply.

Private schools are widely available, charge tuition, and may be faith-based or independent.

Students in specific Vermont towns are eligible for a tuitioning program, which funds their attendance at public or private schools outside their communities. Recently Vermont approved 15 private religious schools for participation in this program. Additional funding

All parents in Vermont have the freedom to homeschool their children.

Parents must provide an annual notification to the state (or school district) of their intent to homeschool. The state requires homeschooling parents to teach specific subjects and also requires some level of assessment, testing, or evaluation of homeschooled students.

